Japan extends $34 million assistance As a support for South Sudanese

6 February 2018

For Immediate Release

Juba —Japan decided to provide a new assistance package of $34 million for South Sudan through its partnership with international organizations.

Since 2013 December, South Sudan has been witnessing a continuous population displacement, both within and outside South Sudan. It is estimated that more than 4 million South Sudanese, approximately one-third of its total population, are displaced and remains at dire humanitarian conditions. Japan continues to provide humanitarian assistance to refugees, IDPs and other vulnerable persons, so that their lives will be saved, their dignity respected and their sufferings alleviated.

While the above life-saving humanitarian assistance must continue, Japan also considers that assistance as a form of capacity building must also continue simultaneously. As part of its effort to promote Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), Japan continues to support South Sudan, the youngest country in the world, so that its institutions will have capacity to effectively serve for the economic and social welfare of its citizens and more South Sudanese will be empowered to improve their lives by their own wills and efforts.

Japan also commits to supporting the efforts to promote peace and stability in South Sudan. Japan supports IGAD's initiative to revitalize the Agreement on the Resolution of the Conflict in South Sudan (ARCSS); CTSAMM's monitoring activities; the efforts to make the National Dialogue as inclusive and effective as possible so that it would complement the High-level Revitalization Forum (HLRF) process; and the facilitation of the voluntary return and reintegration of South Sudanese who decides to return to their own lands where they used to live before displacement.
